GLOBAL MEDIA TURF WILL BROADCAST THE EXCITEMENT OF GRAN PREMIO LATINOAMERICANO

GMT will be the exclusive source for live coverage on this 41st edition which will be run on Saturday, October 18th at Gavea Racecourse in Rio de Janeiro

The passion of South American racing will be experienced in all its intensity next Saturday, October 18th, when Global Media Turf (GMT) brings the entire region — and the world — the exclusive live broadcast of the 41st edition of Gran Premio Latinoamericano (G1), which will take place at the Gávea Racecourse in Rio de Janeiro.

The coverage will include graphic news, interviews with the participants connections - both prior to the race and after the race - reviews of past editions, and exclusive talks with distinguished international personalities who will be present at the event, all conducted in a modern, dynamic, and unique production.

The broadcast will be hosted by Diego Mitagstein, Juan Carlos Feijoó, Néstor Obregón Rossi, Héctor García, and Fernanda Perrone, joined by a team of specialized journalists who will contribute their experience and knowledge in a race meeting that promises to be truly unmissable.

GMT will broadcast the entire race meeting at Gavea racecourse, from noon until the end of the racing festival, bringing fans closer to every moment in one of the most anticipated events of the South American calendar. This will be the crowning moment to the preview on the Countdown towards Gran Premio Latinoamericano that has been running through Objetivo Latino's TV shows.

The broadcast can be watched from www.globalmediaturf.com and also through GMT's YouTube channel, <https://www.youtube.com/@globalmediaturf>

The YouTube link for the direct access to the broadcast will be announced very shortly.

Gran Premio Latinoamericano, organized by OSAF since 1981, embodies the spirit of integration in South American horseracing, bringing together the continent's best Thoroughbreds, jockeys and trainers on a single track. This year, featuring the unique setting of Gavea Racecourse, the region's major racing event will be enjoyed like never before thanks to the production of Global Media Turf which reaffirms its commitment to the promotion and development of South American racing.
